

October 2008

"I have genital herpes" ... "and I don't"

Every time I see that commercial I think, man, you really love that chick.

Translation:

"Hi, I caught herpes by being passed around as a drunken, condom-less, party favor by a local fraternity ... and now this I am settling for this guy."

"Wow, chicks this hot usually never even talk to me, I wonder what's wrong, oh hell who cares!"

Hey, good luck man ... don't let that little princess get away.

With the nation's foreclosure rate at record highs, I am thinking that MTV Cribs might just be in bad taste at this point.

Or maybe they should make it 'Former Cribs', where people give you tours of homes they used to own.

I saw this Dancing With The Stars commercial the other night and they were doing kind of a Motley Crue video take off on 'Girls, Girls, Girls' and they have Kim Kardashian and other hot 'celebs' from the show, dancing around to the Crue song, then the last shot you get is of Cloris Leachman.

Disturbing.

I don't know what kind of message they were trying to send, but I didn't like it ...

Clay Aiken 'comes out' and announces he is gay ... hmmm, wow ... never saw that coming.

I was watching the Cowboys-Bengals game last Sunday and there was this one play in the end zone where PacMan Jones was all alone with Chris Henry ...

Immediately the Dallas Police Department called for backup ...

Speaking of football criminals, O.J. Simpson is found guilty in Vegas, 13 years to the day, of his acquittal of double murder in Los Angeles.

A couple things came to mind:

1. What happens in Vegas, well it doesn't really stay there now does it?
2. It's okay to brutally murder two people, but it's NOT fucking okay to steal some NFL memorabilia
3. Apparently O.J. didn't hear that Johnnie Cochran had died

All kidding aside ... good luck in jail Juice ... it will be good practice for Hell ...

I've been meaning to write this one for awhile ... The Sci-Fi Channel ... original movies. Sci-Fi makes these original movies and they have these great titles like: Alien Hunter, Alien Lockdown, Beyond Loch Ness, Dragon Storm, Lost City Raiders, you get the idea ...

I see them on my Tivo guide and I think hmmm, I'll check that out ... and they are the biggest pieces of crap. The worst 'stars' with the worst scripts, even worse effects and the production value of a Dokken video.

I mean, I would expect more out of my 15 year old son and his buddies armed with nothing more than a DigiCam and a MacBook.

I turned to one the other day and I freakin see Coolio being chased by a fucking pterodactyl ... I'm not kidding: Coolio.

And scary to think how far the pterodactyl's career has fallen.

And speaking of unwatchable movies ... so M.Night Shyamalan and Kevin Smith are basically the movie equivalent of the 'one hit wonder'? Make a good first movie, then everyone expects great things and we are continuously disappointed until we just stop caring and then we actually start to feel sorry for them.

Huh, well there is always work at the Sci-Fi Channel M.Night ...

I was driving in the Bay Area a while back and I see this huge line going out this store and down the street. So I am checking it out to see what all the fuss is about, I mean, maybe Bon Jovi is somewhere close ... so I look harder and these people are lined up at the Apple Store.

The fucking iPhone.

In line for an iPhone.

Society is crumbling. Fucking falling apart! Is it that important to be the first one to have an iPhone? Do you know anyone that would feel like that is something worthwhile? To get an iPhone on the first day? To stand in line for a freaking cell phone?!!!!

I mean, if Pamela Anderson was giving out blow jobs, I would still be like ... 'damn, that's a long line ...'

What the fuck?! God, I am worried about this country.

Anyone see this Hotels.com commercial with the large black gentleman in the bathtub with the two male hotel employees blowing bubbles in it with straws? I guess to simulate a 'hot tub'?

Just odd and disturbing ... and they play it over and over and ...

The two most copied and overused movie lines of the last generation:

'That's gonna leave a mark.' and

'I just threw up a little in my mouth.'

It's about as played as quoting Caddyshack while golfing or Rounders while playing poker.

Yeah, yeah, we get it ... funny.

I checked out Kimbo Slice fighting the other night. MMA / UFC style. He's the guy who is a YouTube hero, street fighter, etc ... basically the new millennium Mr.T ... supposed to be bad ass. He was supposed to fight Ken Shamrock, but Ken got cut and was forced to withdraw, so they had this other kid, a decent MMA fighter step in to fight Kimbo in the main event.

So all the hype and music and bullshit ... Kimbo gets his ass kicked in 13 seconds.

One punch, down ... jumped on, punched ... fight stopped. Thanks for coming.

Which just again proves the point: Street Fighting is NOT professional fighting. Pro Fighters train everyday, to do one thing: Fight.

Just cuz I can cover my buddies playing football in the street doesn't mean I can cover Randy Moss on Sundays.

And Kimbo is lucky Shamrock couldn't go ... Ken Shamrock is one of the few human beings on this planet that actually scares me. Shamrock would have given him a beating to end all beatings and would have taken great joy in doing it.

Stick to fighting scrubs in parking lots Kimbo ...

And speaking of Ken Shamrock, his brother Frank Shamrock is also a MMA Fighter. They are adopted, not blood related, but adopted brothers. But they look exactly the same. I mean, they look more alike than me and my fucknut brother.

For those who follow MMA ... check it out ... NOT blood related but look like freakin twins ...

I would like to see a fight to the death between Hanson and the Jonas Brothers.

I saw during the NL playoffs, this stat, the Dodgers and Cubs had played each other 2024 times in their history ... each team winning 1012 times. Crazy.

I want to give a big SINacle shout out to Jason Williams. White Chocolate retired to little fanfare this off season. Jason, Chris Webber, Vlade Divac and crew brought life and excitement to a Sacramento Kings franchise which hadn't experienced much of either.

You will be missed White Boy ... thanks for the highlights.

And one last note ... we are saddened at times by the passing of celebs ... but this is a tough one ...

Paul Newman

Since Steve McQueen died in 1980, you have been the coolest man alive ...

Rest in peace.

"Nobody can eat fifty eggs ..."

- Until Next Time - SEM

SINacle.com

Copyright © 2002-2008 Dead Legend Enterprises